RUN THE TRAIN.

Desperate Toughs Take Possession of a Train.

The Trainmen Assaulted and Passengers Frightened — A Pugilist Punishes One of the Gang.

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 17.—William Havens, Jud Wilson and other toughs from Bushnell got on the northbound Quincy passenger train at Macon Tuesday night and proceeded to carry out their threats to run the train, every car of which was crowded. When the brakeman, Fred Boyd, interfered, they knocked him down, wrested his lantern from him and tried to to pound him over the head with it, but the blows took effect on the head of Judge Sherman, cutting an ugly hole and severing an artery. The ruffians trampled over women and children and gave expression to indecent threats. Conductor Mount, who was held back in a corner, received several blows. The breaking down of the engine and the stopping of the train between Bardolph and Bushnell added to the terror of the situation. Wilson drew a long knife and drove the passengers from the cars. Havens threatened Chas. Coleman, a heavy-weight pugilist of Bushnell, but Coleman rendered the whole train a service by knocking Havens senseless and kicking him over the head until it required prolonged efforts by a physician to bring him to. At Bushnell Havens was taken from the train more dead than alive.

ASKED TO RESIGN.

Governor Flower After the Scalps of the New York Civil Service Commissioners—Treachery Charged.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A special from Albany says that on Friday last Governor Flower wrote to each of the three civil service commissioners and demanded their resignations. The commissioners are Alex C. Eustace, of Elmira, William A. Poste, of New York, and John A. Sleicher, of Albany. The latter is the only republican on the board. They were all appointed by Governor Hill. Treachery to their party is said to be the motive of the governor in the case of the Democrats and "offensive partisanship" in the case of the republican member. The civil service commissioners are appointed by the governor and are removable at will. The salary of the office is $2,000 a year, with expenses incurred in the line of duty.

VOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER.

The Jury in the Garven Murder Case Sent Back to Change Its Verdict.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 17.—The jury in the Garven murder case came into court at 9:45 o'clock this morning and reported a verdict of "involuntary manslaughter." There being no such crime in dictment, Judge McClung sent the jury out to make a proper verdict. At 10:05 a. m. they returned with a verdict, finding Garven guilty of voluntary manslaughter. They recommended the defendant to the extreme mercy of the court.

LOVED CLEVELAND.

Kentucky Democrats Wouldn't Listen to Senator Blackburn.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 17.—At a monster democratic ratification meeting held last night Senator Joe C. Blackburn attempted to address 10,000 democrats, but they refused to listen to him. He was not a Cleveland man at Chicago, and the Kentuckians, who love Cleveland, do not want to hear any many who was against him. They drowned his voice with tin horns and yells and after a few minutes he quit in disgust.

FATAL JOLLIFICATIONS.

Terrible Explosion at a Ratification in Arkansas.

Three Persons Killed and Others Injured—Shooting Affray at Alexandria, Ind.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 17.—The democrats of Mountain View held a presidential election celebration in the district school house at that place Tuesday night, and a terrible disaster ended the proceedings prematurely. Anvil firing and the discharge of fireworks were features of the jollification, and as a consequence a large quantity of explosives had been provided. A portion of these had been stored in the school house. During the speech making, and while the building was packed with men, women and children, two kegs of powder exploded. The results were frightful. The school house was totally destroyed, and most of its occupants buried in the ruins. Those who could extricate themselves set about at once to rescue the others. Shrieks and moans came from the mass of wrecked timbers and it was evident that the calamity was a terrible one. The debris took fire in several places, and it required hard work to prevent the cremation of the persons who were imprisoned. The flames were subdued, however, with only one person suffering from the fire. A son and daughter of Silas Graham were taken out dead, and Berry Sherod, one of the prominent residents of Washington county, was so badly injured that he has since died. Another man, whose name has not been learned, was also fatally hurt. Fifteen other persons were seriously injured, but their names have not been ascertained. Berry Sherod suffered terrible agony mentally as well as physically, before he was got out of the ruins. He was pinned down by timbers and burned beyond recognition. He lived several hours after being rescued.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

ALEXANDRIA, Ind., Nov. 17.—The ratification of Cleveland's election at this place brought on a shooting affair last night, in which five persons were badly wounded. Paul Finch and Fred Benton were on the street and it is alleged that they insulted the wife of a glass blower, who at once knocked Finch down. The latter ran across the street to his barber shop and secured a revolver. Benton grabbed the weapon and began firing promiscuously into the crowd. The procession was just passing and the flying bullets got in their work. Jesse Beal, Frank Cox, Jim Swindell, Will Jones and an unknown fifth person, were all hit. Cox is dangerously wounded. Marshal Finnimore arrested both Finch and Benton, who were taken to Anderson and lodged in jail.

CABINET GOSSIP.

General W. S. Rosecrans Being Boomed for Secretary of War—The Blue and Grey Support "Old Rosey."

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A special from Washington says a movement developed in that city yesterday looking to the selection of Gen W. S. Rosecrans as secretary of war in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet. Strangely enough the movement is backed by an ex-confederate, Capt. J. W. Searle, and a meeting of the friends of "Old Rosy" was held yesterday to take action in the matter. It is understood that Captain Searle has been in communication with soldiers of the "lost cause" in all portions of the south and he says he has received many letters favorable to General Rosecrans selection from men who wore the grey. It is understood also that a powerful organization of ex-union soldiers will co-operate in bringing influence to bear on the President-elect in the old general's behalf.

CLEVELAND'S PROMISES.

A Strong Statement Denying That He Made Any.

The Brooklyn Eagle Tells the Story of the Historical Dinner at the Victoria Hotel.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Brooklyn Eagle yesterday, in an editorial, strongly denied the published statements that at a dinner at the Victoria hotel, which Mr. Cleveland met the Tammany leaders and made promises and stipulations to them in return for their support at his election. The editorial says: "The truth as to what the practicioners on Mr. Cleveland's courage and freedom learned is this: They learned that Mr. Cleveland would make no promises or anything of the sort to any of them, or to, or for any others through them; that he had not sought the nomination, which, on the contrary, had sought him; that he considered the success of the ticket in this state a matter of much more importance to them than to him; that he repelled the idea that his democracy was questionable by them or doubtable by any one; that they knew he was aware who had been his friends before the nomination and he would know who had and who had not been his friends after the election; that he would have no friends to reward on account of friendship and no former opponents to punish on account of former opposition, the sole question to election or to defeat equally free and absolutely uncommitted, but that if the democratic people and ticket were beaten in this state by the democratic machine, another democratic organization was ready to take its place at once, and that in such case the youngest man present could not live even enough to see that machine sufficiently strong to win or to betray a cause thereafter, or one of their number ever sitting in a state or national convention again."

Last night at a dinner given by the Manhattan Single Tax club, Mr. Thos. G. Shearman, of Brooklyn, said that at the now historical dinner, there were present Messrs. Cleveland, Whitney, Dickinson, Sheehan, Edward Murphy, jr., and Richard Croker. "Mr. Cleveland has not told me anything about the pledges he made," said Mr. Shearman, "but there happens to be a telephone in the room where that dinner was held, which has conveyed to me what happened."

Mr. Shearman then pictured Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan as standing up and addressing Mr. Cleveland on the subject of pledges. Mr. Cleveland replied to Mr. Sheehan: "Mr. Sheehan, I have listened with the utmost attention to what you have said. I have followed you very carefully and I think I understand you perfectly, and what I have to say in reply, Mr. Sheehan, is that I'll be damned before I'll pledge myself to any man on any subject whatever, and I'll be doubly damned before I give you these particular pledges for which you have asked at this particular time."

MURPHY DENIES THE STORY.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Mr. Edward Murphy, jr., chairman of the democratic state committee, in an interview today with a reporter of the United Press, denied the statements made by Mr. Shearman with regard to Mr. Cleveland's remarks at the recent Victoria hotel dinner, in which the latter is stated as saying to Lieutenant Governor Sheehan that he would be damned before he would give certain pledges as the democratic machine demanded.

COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS.

General U. S. Catlin May be Appointed to the Position.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Gen. U. S. Catlin this morning denied to a United Press reporter that he had been promised the appointment of commissioner of pensions as reported. He said he knew nothing of such a promise and was not even aware that his name had been mentioned for the place. A strong movement is being made in Grand Army and other circles looking to his appointment to the office. General Catlin is a brother-in-law of Secretary of the Navy Tracy and a prominent democrat in this city. He was nominated for congress this fall, but declined to run.

No Cabinet Place for Indiana.
(Indianapolis News.)

It is the belief of the best informed Indiana democrats that the state will not have a cabinet position under Cleveland. "It is nice to talk about Gray being in the cabinet," said a democrat today, "but the will never be there. Gray may consider himself lucky if he gets a good foreign mission. Shanklin will receive a better place than Gray, but he will not be in the cabinet. Shanklin is a student, likes to travel, and will be satisfied with a foreign mission of some sort. Cleveland feels that he is not under any obligations to Indiana, I have been informed, and it will be well to look for many disappointments in this state. As to Morse, of the Sentinel, he will not ask for anything. He would be glad, doubtless, to succeed John C. New as consul general to London, but if the place comes to him it will come unsought."

RUNAWAY CARS

Travel Down Grade at the Rate of 120 Miles an Hour.

Conductor and Brakeman Killed—A Collision Follows and Engineer Davis Also Meets His Death.

MONTEREY, Mexico, Nov. 17.—The particulars of one of the most remarkable and exciting railroad accidents that ever occurred in Mexico have just been received. The catastrophe occurred four days ago on the Mexican National line. The grade of the road from this city for a distance of ninety miles beyond Saltillo is very steep. On Sunday afternoon a doubleheader was pulling a train load of corn up the mountain side when the coupling broke, releasing the caboose and six cars filled with corn from the train. James Martin, the conductor, and Frank Harwood, a brakeman, tried to set the brakes, but were powerless to stop the increasing momentum of the cars down the mountain. Within a distance of six miles the train was running at a speed of ninety miles an hour. The cars began jumping the track and Martin and Harwood both went down, meeting a terrible death. Before Saltillo was reached all of the cars, with the exception of the caboose and one other, had left the track. These two continued their mad flight, passing through the Saltillo yards at the rate of fully 120 miles an hour. The train despatcher at Saltillo was terror stricken when he saw the cars pass, as he knew they were certain to crash into another double header freight train which was pulling up the mountain twenty miles below Saltillo. He could give the train no warning, so he did the next best thing by having the wrecking train ordered out. The caboose and loaded car kept to the track. Frank Davis, the engineer of the up train saw them coming down the mountain, but too late to save himself. His fireman and the crew of the second engine jumped and received but slight injuries. Davis was buried under a pile of corn and debris. Both engines were completely dismantled.

FOR WIFE MURDER.

George Cooper is Arraigned on the Above Charge.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The trial of George Barker Cooper for the murder of his wife, Edith Cooper, was continued today at Douglas, in the Isle of Man.

A policeman testified that after the murder had been discovered Cooper said he wished he had done it at Manchester. A letter was also read which Cooper was alleged to have written while in jail to a Mrs. Hunt, whose husband had sued for a divorce on the ground of his wife's misconduct with Cooper. In his letter there was an allusion to a projected elopment by Cooper and Mrs. Hunt. The object of reading this letter was to show that Cooper may have had another motive than merely a sudden quarrel for killing his wife. The prosecution closed with this testimony and the defense was opened.

Brewery Burned.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—Fire started at 9 o'clock this morning in the large establishment of the National Brewing company, at Canton, Baltimore county. The entire plant was destroyed and the city fire department was called upon for aid. Three engines and a truck were sent. The loss will probably be $300,000. At noon the fire was under control.

AS THE spirit of the age is unquestionably one of fairness, it follows that a martyr stands far more chance of public support and sympathy than an autocrat and that the surest way to create popularity for a man is to persecute him. The presumption is always, and generally with justice, against the persecutors. Persecution of whatever kind is at once a blunder and a crime.

QUITE SUBDUED.

Kaufman, the Desperado, in Court This Morning.

He Said He was Guilty and Acted the Baby—He was Sent to Jail.

In police court this morning Harry Kaufman, the would-be desperado, looked quite crest-fallen when his case was called.

Mayor Zollinger being absent at Chicago, police court was presided over by Squire Ryan. The charge against Kaufman was that of carrying concealed weapons and was sworn to by Officer Quinn. Kaufman plead "guilty" with a very weak voice. Officer Quinn stated the circumstances of Kaufman's arrest by himself and Lieutenant Lapp. Kaufman had his revolver in his side coat pocket. It was cocked, and he had his finger on the trigger ready to shoot the first man who touched him. The officers grabbed his arm and prevented him using his gun. The officer also stated that the fellow had literally run the train to suit himself. The fellow refused to pay his fare, claiming that he was an actor with the "O, What a Night" company, which was on board the train. Kaufman was put off the train at Van Wert and at once got on the ladies' coach in the rear. As soon as the train started he took the revolver from his hip pocket and, cocking it, put it into his side coat pocket. The conductor was afraid to tackle him as the fellow threatened to shoot the first man who approached. Kaufman claims to run the Burnett house at Delphos, but it is more than likely that he is only a common porter. The fellow was crazy drunk and was winding up a big spree commenced at Delphos a day or so ago. He stated to a SENTINEL representative last evening that he had been watching Mrs. Burnett's grave for the past seven nights and hadn't had a wink of sleep. He was no doubt horrified on the delerium tremens when he got on the train at Van Wert.

Squire Ryan fined him $10 and costs and Kaufman went to jail. He sent a telegram to Delphos but got no reply.

The gun with which Philips shot Bud Green is in the county jail in keeping of Turnkey Lindsey. The weapon is an old style rifle with the barrel bored out for a muzzle loading shot gun. The barrel is some three feet long. Many curious people have called to see Philips.

John B. Harris, Albert L. Plank and Abraham L. Lorenz, doing business as John B. Harris & Co., filed suit in Justice Wilkinson's court yesterday morning against the American Express company. They complain and set forth that James Morrison on May 13 last at Montague, Mich., delivered to the express company a package, containing $30 in currency, ninety-five cents in cash and promissory notes executed by divers persons to plaintiffs, consigned to the plaintiffs addressed to Fort Wayne; that this package was not delivered, owing to delay on the part of the company, until August 20, 1892; that when it was delivered it did not contain the said $30, which money, it is alleged had been abstracted from the package. The demand made by the plaintiffs is that they be given judgment for $40. The case is set for Nov. 26, at 10 a. m.

In the trial of Adam La Mar, held yesterday afternoon, the boy waived examination and was held over to the United States court in $1,000 bail, his father going on his bond. A bold attempt at highway robbery and possibly murder was attempted on a public street in this city early last evening. The victim was S. Milton McFerran, the wood engraver, who resides at 215 West Jefferson street. Mr. McFerran was seen at his office in the Smith block by a SENTINEL representative this morning and related his experience as follows: "I was on my way down town last evening about 9 o'clock, bound for the barber shop. I had just turned the corner of Broadway and Washington streets at J. M. Keller's drug store. Just as I turned to go east on Washington street two men stepped out from the shadow of the building. One of the men stepped up and made a grab for me, saying: 'I want you, you ——— ———.' I had a heavy cane in my hand and, stepping back, struck at the fellow, who dodged and pulled a big revolver. He thrust it into my face and as he did so the other fellow jumped out and also pointed a revolver at my head. The second highwayman made an attempt to get behind me, but I saw his little game too quickly and concluded that my best show was to run. I ran down Washington street for a little distance and there met Mr. A. A. Furman, to whom I told the story of the fellows trying to hold me up. While we were talking a policeman came up and the officer and I went back to look for the fellows, but no trace of them could be found, although we made a close search.

"Both men were heavy dark overcoats, buttoned up closely. The one who made the first grab for me was smoothly shaven, but I was too much excited to notice the other fellow. I don't want an enemy in the world, that I know of."

The highwaymen were evidently intent only on robbery, as Mr. McFerran wears an elegant diamond ring and carries a fine watch. He also had quite a little sum of money on his person. The early hour of the attempted robbery and the boldness of the robbers makes the affair doubly atrocious. Mr. McFerran is a member of F. J. Rodabaugh and came here from Kentucky a short time ago. He says the revolvers presented at his head looked like small sized cannons.

State Y. P. S. C. E. Convention
(Indianapolis News.)

The state convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which convenes at Fort Wayne on the 25th inst., promises to be the largest state gathering of young people ever held in the state. Next Sunday the various societies throughout the city will make a special effort to ascertain the number going from each society. On Thanksgiving day, the day before the state convention meets, there will be a union service, under the direction of the Indianapolis local union, at the Second Presbyterian church chapel at 9 o'clock a. m. Miss Hattie Wishard will conduct the meeting, which will be in the nature of a prayer service for the state convention.

The trains on the Big Four and Lake Erie railways will leave at 6 and 7 o'clock, respectively on Friday morning, reaching Fort Wayne in time for the opening services in the forenoon.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

The Funeral of Bud Green Held Today.

Wm. Schoppman, the eleven-year-old son of Philip Schoppman, of No. 41 Elizabeth street, died at 10 o'clock this morning, of inflammation of the bowels. The funeral will probably not be held before Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tibbles have gone to Peru to attend the funeral of their niece, Miss Maud Farrar, daughter of Colonel Farrar, who died yesterday of spinal trouble aged twenty-three. Miss Farrar was a very prominent member of the Christian Endeavor society and had been elected as the delegate from her society to the convention in this city next week.

The funeral of Arthur Green was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence, 353 East Wayne street. The burial was held at Lindenwood cemetery.

THUMPED THE POLICEMAN.

Four United States Marines Disgrace Themselves.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 17.—Police Officer Hennessey was set upon last night by four United States marines, while attempting to arrest one of them. During the melee he had his nose broken and received serious injuries about the head. He is in a critical condition. Two of his assailants were arrested.

The Democratic Soldiers' club meets in the superior court room tonight to perfect their organization.

THERE are 20,000,000 church members in this country, and the wonder is what they do with themselves just about election time.

SENATOR HAYDEN TALKS.

Indiana Not Appearing Well at the World's Fair.

The Senator Intimates That Commissioner Havens Is Neglectful—Another Appropriation Wanted.

The Indianapolis News last evening had the following interesting gossip about Hon. F. J. Hayden, of this city:

"Ex-Senator Hayden, of Fort Wayne, treasurer of the Indiana world's fair board, today drew $20,000 of the legislative appropriation for world's fair purposes. Only $8,000 of the $75,000 appropriated now remains unpaid. Mr. Hayden says the Indiana building at the world's fair will cost complete $60,000. It was the original intention to erect a building to cost not more than $25,000, but the ideas of the board have expanded as it has become more familiar with the standard of architectural excellence set by other states.

"Mr. Hayden is displeased with the part Indiana took in the world's fair dedicatory ceremonies. He says that this state made a poorer showing at that time than any other state in the union. In the grand parade the managers of the ceremonies provided seven carriages for Indiana officials and prominent citizens. Only one of these were occupied. In it were Governor Chase's private secretary, Adjutant General Ruckle and Mrs. and Miss Chase. Mr. Hayden can not understand why Governor Chase himself was not present, and why provision was not made for occupying the carriages. On the world's fair grounds the states which had buildings partly completed had cleaned up around them, made them as pleasant as possible and posted placards announcing what states they belonged to. Indiana was the only exception to this rule. Mr. Hayden says he saw many Indiana people searching about for the Indiana building, and knows that hundreds failed to find it. Those who found it were compelled to climb over piles of dirt, and mortar, and lumber to reach it. There were for distribution at the dedication ceremonies, beautiful souvenirs containing pictures and descriptions of all the principal buildings except the Indiana building.

"For some reason that alone was omitted, although, in Mr. Hayden's opinion, it is by far the finest bit of architectural work among all the state buildings there. These souvenirs were sent over the world, and were a magnificent advertisement, Mr. Hayden said. The omission of Indiana he considered a grave blunder.

"I blame Executive Commissioner Havens for the condition in which Indiana people found their building when they went to the dedication ceremonies and for the omission of the Indiana building from the souvenir, Mr. Hayden said. 'We pay Havens a large salary for looking after all these things, and they ought to be attended to. All we can do is to try to make up for what we have lost by extra exertion.'

"Mr. Hayden says that the legislature will be asked this winter to appropriate more money for the world's fair. All of the state institutions will be asked to make appropriations, and it seems to be absolutely necessary that some of them should have more money, he added. This, he feared, would prove a serious obstacle to securing an additional appropriation for the world's fair."

AN EXPLOSION.

Emmett Deely Badly Burned at the Bower Oil Tank Works—The Gas was Escaping.

This morning about the hour of 7 Emmett Deely, employed at S. F. Bower & Co.'s Oil Tank works, met with a serious accident. The young man was at work in the main shops and thought he discovered escaping gas. He lighted a match to see when an explosion followed. Deely was badly burned about the face and arms and was taken to his home on Lafayette street, where his wounds were dressed. He suffered intensely but will recover if no complications follow.

STORY OF TWO WOMEN.

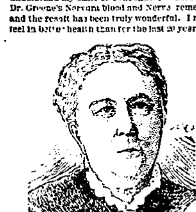

What the Trouble Was and How it Resulted.

What Each Has to Say About This Most Interesting Matter.

Something Never Before Equaled in Our Experience.

The story of each is brief, but both are eloquent with true feeling of gratitude given in their own words.

The first, Mrs. E. S. Bogart, of the Baptist Home, 68th street New York City, is as follows: "For eight years I have been constantly under the care of doctors, but no relief, nor, from what the doctors told me, did I expect to get any better. I was convinced that they did not understand my case, so I thought I would try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and the result has been truly wonderful. I now feel in better health than for the last 20 years.

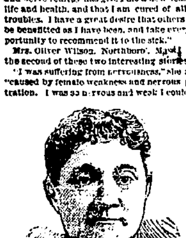

MRS. E. S. BOGART.

"During all this time I had been suffering with malaria, heart disease, kidney and liver complaints, nervous prostration and sleeplessness. For the three months before taking this wonderful remedy, I had been confined to my room, and most of the time to the bed. I feel, with the blessing of God, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has given me a new lease of life and health, and that I am cured of all my troubles. I have a great desire that others may be benefitted as I have been, and take every opportunity to recommend it to the sick."

Mrs. Oliver Wilson, Northboro', Mass., tells the second of these two interesting stories:

"I was suffering from nervousness," she says, "caused by female weakness and nervous prostration. I was so nervous and weak I could not go up a common pair of stairs without stopping to rest, and was troubled to sleep at night. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and have obtained my old elastic step around the house, to the surprise of my friends. After creeping around for two years, hardly able to do anything, it has proved a boon to me truly. I know of many others whom it has cured and who speak most highly in praise of it."

How anybody who suffers from disease can read these two marvelous cures and not be influenced to use this truly great remedy immediately, is beyond our understanding. Druggists keep it for $1, and it is a vegetable medicine and perfectly harmless. It must not be confounded with what are known as patent medicines, for it is a physician's prescription, the discovery of a great specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street New York, who can be consulted by all free of charge, personally or by letter.

His wonderful remedy will cure you if you will use it.

MR. BLAINE has not yet said, "I told you so."

WITH cholera increasing in virulence in St. Petersburg, with new cases at Buda-Pesth and Hamburg, the safeguards of quarantine should not yet be too much relaxed.

THREE cotton mills—two in Providence and one in Lowell—yesterday voted to increase the wages of their operatives. This does not look as if wages would be cut down soon after the election of Cleveland.

A CASE of "peanut" politics is reported from Philadelphia. A devout Harrison worshipper, who must be considerable of a goose in other respects, paid an election wager by pushing a peanut along the sidewalk on Chestnut street from Broad to Seventh with a toothpick.

A NUMBER of papers in the state have announced the name of Judge S. M. Hench as a prominent candidate for the next speaker of the house of representatives. Mr. Hench would make an excellent presiding officer and THE SENTINEL hopes he may be successful in his race.

THE Indianapolis News says a good deal of talk is already being heard concerning the speakership of the house. As usual there will be no lack of candidates. Those already announced as aspiring to the place are James B. Curtis, of Marion; Frank D. Ader, of Putnam; W. A. Cullop, of Knox; Samuel Hench, of Allen; Hugh D. McMullen, of Dearborn; James Fippen, of Tipton, and Richard Erwin, of Adams.

THE greatest humbug of the nineteenth century is the life insurance of children. The different towns and cities in Indiana are being overrun by a set of men urging mothers to insure the lives of their little darlings. We know nothing about the reliability of the companies, but the system and scheme is an outrage and a curse and should not be tolerated in this enlightened age. It is even worse than the death-bed insurance that flourished in our country a few years ago.

EDWARD CLAUSMEIER, the new democratic sheriff, took his office today. We predict that Mr. Clausmeier will make a competent, careful and popular sheriff. We are pleased to notice that he has retained Platt J. Wise as first deputy. With Mr. Wise in the sheriff's office the public always feel assured that everything will be kept in a first-class and correct manner. The retiring sheriff, George H. Viberg, has made many friends during his administration and retires with the best wishes of all. He has made an energetic and competent sheriff.

WE COMMEND to every young man and woman the following from the South Bend Sunday News: "Men going about seeking employment are too often unsuccessful, because their faculties have never been trained in any particular direction. They can do a little of everything, but not much of anything. They may know something about bookkeeping, but not enough to justify their employment; they may be able to tinker a little at some trade, but not sufficiently skilled to secure or hold a place. They are like untamable colts in a pasture, of no use to themselves or their fellows and a burden to all. Everybody, men and women, ought to learn to do at least one thing well. This is an age of specialties. A man cannot do two things as well as he can one he is most efficient at. Without a trade or special training in some kind of work a man must depend upon his wits or the demand for common labor, which is uncertain and unremunerative."

They Are Not All Bad.

An instance has just come to light in which it was proven that the much-despised tramp is not always as wholly devoid of the nobler instincts as he is generally supposed to be. A few mornings ago the lives of a train load of people were saved by one of the peripatetic fraternity out in Oregon, in the following manner: An express train, composed of six cars, was running at the rate of about forty-five miles an hour, and was thirty-two miles east of Pendleton when a sharp whistle for down brakes was heard, and with a sudden jolt the train came to an abrupt standstill. The passengers hastened forward to ascertain the cause of delay and found a huge mass of rock in front of and underneath the engine. Standing at one side with a smoking torch in his hand, and panting with exertion, was one of the oldest specimens of man ever produced. About six feet tall, gaunt and ragged, and with three weeks' growth of beard on his face, he was every inch a tramp. He wore a broad-brimmed sombrero that was once white in color and which hung in folds about his dirty face and shoulders. In answer to a volley of questions from the passengers, the story was soon told. A huge mass of loose rock had slid down upon the track. The tramp, upon seeing the dangerous situation, built a fire on the track and commenced to remove the obstruction. He had been over the track the night before and knew about when the express train was due, so that when he heard it coming he seized a brand from the fire and dashed down the track to meet it. The engineer saw him, reversed his engine and almost brought the train to a standstill when it struck the rocks.

Trouble at Harvard.

The degree of A. M. at Harvard university has, according to the Boston Advertiser, been undergoing various vicissitudes in the last twenty years, and it might now be worth while to state the present manner of obtaining it here. Before 1870 graduates of three years' standing from the university could obtain the degree by paying a small fee. But shortly after that this regulation was abolished, and an order was passed by the academical council, now called the faculty of arts and sciences, that the candidate for the degree of master of arts, being otherwise properly qualified, should pursue one year's study at the university and attain a high grade. This state of affairs existed up to a few years ago, when the three years' course was agitating everyone. Many men who graduated in the midst of the agitation secured their degree of A. M. by petition while they were accomplishing the work of the regular four years; they taking the required additional work at the same time. But this manner of obtaining it manifestly violated the year of additional residence required after securing the degree of A. B.; so that it is by no means certain whether present seniors will be able to get A. M.'s in addition to A. B.'s.

THE methods of lumbering have so greatly changed in Maine in recent years that there is scarcely an idle interval now between the driving time when logs are floated down to the sawmills, at the end of the season, and the chopping time at the beginning of the next season. Men now go into the woods in August, and this year crews of choppers had left Bangor for the camps before the last log drives arrived at the old town.

THE approach of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America has, it is said, incidentally revived the talk of bringing the remains of Columbus to the United States. During the latter part of Cleveland's administration United States Consul Atwood at San Domingo originated the scheme. No communications on the subject have since passed between the department of state and the officials in San Domingo.

LIEUT. PEARY'S wife, who has just returned from the arctic regions with the rest of her husband's party, was the first woman who ever braved the rigors of Greenland. She showed no ill effects from her winter near the pole, and is reported to have battled through it with as much energy as any of the men of the party. To her the men owed many of the comforts that made the dreary winter time endurable.

THE Indians of the northwest do not take kindly to civilization. During the last six months there have been but one hundred and seventy-five Indians given the rights of citizenship in the state of South Dakota, and few and in some cases none in the other northwestern states.

IN a West Brighton band of twenty pieces that flourished during the season just passed there were seven dummies—men who pretended to be playing instruments, but merely held them to their mouths. Not one of them knew a note of music from a Greek character.

THE bloody "town and gown" rows which Thomas Hughes pictures so vividly at Oxford are, according to recent reports, being started in Crawfordsville, Ind., between the Wabash college students and the town toughs.

A COLORED woman residing at Indian Springs, Ga., has been the mother of fifty-three children. One of her sisters has had thirty children and another one has nursed twenty-seven.

A MINISTER at Hammond, Ind., lately officiated at a wedding and received fifty cents from the groom, for which he was compelled to give a receipt. The wife of that man will very likely have to get up and make the fire.

The Hon. John F. Smith, of Westminster, Md., judge of the circuit court of Carroll Co., Md., says: "I have used Salvation Oil for rheumatism. Its effects were prompt and lasting."

THE FIELDS OF STUBBLE.

Over the field of stubble
The grasshopper flits and sings,
And butterflies float like thistle down
On gossamer golden wings.
Yet up from the glint of the gleaming waste,
Are stocks of thistle and tare,
And after the harvest is reaped and gone,
The weeds grow sturdily on and on,
Their blight in each furrow is easily traced,
Though only the straw is there.

Over life's field of stubble,
I wonder how it will be,
We hid the weed in the plumy grain,
While the summer winds are free,
But when the harvester by and by
Gathers his golden sheaves,
The sinful and selfish will all be found,
And into the selfsame sheaf be bound,
Where the best of our efforts lie:
While sin its scarring leaves.

Over life's field of stubble
When the busy reaper has gone,
Will the secret sins we have nourished
Grow steadily on and on?
Then let us be busy and watchful alway,
For the summer of life will wane,
To pluck the evils that love to hide
Under the cover of good, abide,
For the field of stubble, we leave some day,
For the yield of the wealth of grain.

MY DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

The Wonders She Has Worked About the Old Home.

You see, there was just Tom. If the old farmhouse had been full of girls an' boys, I suppose we wouldn't have been so silly over him. Folks allowed we were bound to spoil him, an' I'll own up that if the boy hadn't been blessed with the best of constitutions, morally and physically, he would never have grown up as he did. His father is a good man, as good a man as walks the earth, but soft-hearted an' homely—very. Now, if I were not candid I don't know that I'd come right out plain with the fact that I'm partial to good looks. It's easy to be candid on paper; so easy that men an' women have been known to carry "diary" enough about to hang them as high as Haman—at least so I've heard. Adam makes out to hold beauty as something of no value; calls it a snare an' a delusion, but he can't convince me that it isn't one of Heaven's good gifts. Of course there is beauty an' beauty, but beauty true preaches better sermons than many divines preach, to my thinkin'. Bein' so dispositioned, I was naturally glad to have Tom, as he was, tall, an' straight an' good to look on. Another thing which made me softer toward him than was necessary, was that he looked so much like myself. I was glad to know (could I help it?) that the clear, blue eyes, which looked so boldly out on the world, were my own over again in all but their boldness, an' that the gold-brown hair had the same tint an' wave in it that still lingered in mine, an' that the funny dimple, which the years could not efface, had its counterpart in another chin—one not so well shaped as it used to be.

I have an idea that Adam liked to have it all so, though he was wont to say at every breach of discipline an' lapse from duty on the part of the lad: "Tom's too good lookin'—for a boy." I doubt in my own mind if there is a man alive who ever looked on a girl and thought her too good lookin'. Curious, isn't it? Well, seein' that he was all we had to manage, one would suppose we could do the job ourselves, but I do believe that half the men in the neighborhood did their level best to assist Adam, an' just as many women fairly forced their aid on me. I'm independent myself—I don't want anybody doin' for me what I'm able to do for myself—an' so I may have appeared a little ungrateful an' crusty to well-meanin' people. Alvira Wesley talked mean about me 'round the neighborhood when I wouldn't follow her advice when he was teethin', and she still pursued me when he was a great fellow at college. She was full of the things she called "suggestions," an' I don't deny that I was sick of her—very. But seein' she was an old maid who had no boy of her own, an' wasn't ever likely to, I let her kind of meddle with mine as much as I could without violatin' my principles. When she brought forward a string of spice-wood berries to preserve him from sickness I coaxed, an' bribed an' threatened him into wearing them for a week, but when she brought out a scheme for keepin' a distrustful watch over every action I was forced to turn upon her. He was twenty years old then, an' one of the happiest fellows in the world. I hope I didn't speak uncharitably to Alvira, but I was plain—very. I wasn't much afraid of my boy goin' wrong. We were always so near together at heart that I was sure of him. Alvira doesn't know it to this day, but her hints an' sayin's made me do a thing I'll be ashamed of as long as I live—I searched Tom's trunk. If he had come an' caught me at it I believe I'd have died then an' there, but I kept right on till I reached the bottom. I tried each little key, I opened each box an' drawer, an' there wasn't a thing in all the place but every mother an' sister in the neighborhood might have seen. I felt so mean, an' glad an' joyful all together, that I shed tears when I laid back the old picture of Adam an' me taken when we were courtin'—a daguerreotype, an' poor at that.

Thank God for a boy like mine! Well, as he had promised when he went away to tell me everything, at least most everything, I kept waitin' to hear that he intended comin' home an' marryin' neighbor Jones' daughter in the fall. Her name is Eliza Jane, an' she isn't pretty, in fact she's downright homely, but in all the township you couldn't find a thriftier, tidier girl. I didn't say anything to Adam, but I had my mind made up to go off down east visitin', an' leave the young couple to manage for awhile. I've worked hard—very; an' when a woman gets to be forty she begins to feel the need of a shirkin' spell sometimes. Adam thought a heap of Eliza Jane, an' 'twas a shock to both of us to learn that Tom had fallen dead in love with the sister of his chum, an' wanted to bring "the dearest girl in the world home to cheer our hearts an' brighten our lives," etc. I was disappointed, and so was Adam, but he seemed to find a heap of comfort in repeatin' about once in every five minutes that Tom was too good lookin'—for a boy.

I'll never forget how I felt when I first set eyes on her—never. She looked for all the world like a picture, sweet-faced, brown-eyed an' wonderfully dainty. I thought of 'most a hundred things in that first minute; of the work crowdin' on, of my shattered visitin' scheme an' of homely Eliza Jane Jones. Daisy, Tom's Daisy, was so pretty, an' all at once I felt wrinkled an' brown, an' misshapen an' jealous—oh, how jealous! Of course I embraced her. Tom's eyes were on me, and I couldn't help myself. But later I got him in my room an' had it out with him in the old, outspoken way. When I came to Eliza Jane the boy looked horrified. "Heaven forbid!" he cried, and then, like the crafty fellow he was, he smoothed my face an' declared that he loved the two nicest women in the world as it was.

"But your wife's no worker, I can see," I went on. "An' I know just how it will be—she'll want a lot of machinery to fool away time an' money on. I won't have no new-fangled arrangements here, Tom, not at all. I wouldn't say it to a neighbor, or even to your father, not for money, but I'm afraid you've made a mistake." Tom didn't seem a bit frightened. "An' Tom, of course she's nearest to you now; it's right she should be, but you mustn't expect me to wait on her day after day an' take my pay in highfalutin' talk an' airs. I never will." He was holdin' me so close that I couldn't go on, but when he loosened his arm I continued. It was hard work, though, with that boy lookin' down at me as though I was the very nicest mother alive.

"By an' by there'll be new cares," I said, boldly, though my cheeks burned, "an' I'll be expected to take charge of the babies. Now, I'm too old to begin it, an' I won't begin it, not for you nor Daisy nor anybody on earth. There!" How that boy laughed!

He made everything jingle, an' Adam's shears, which he kept hangin' at the head of the bed in case of burglars, went to the floor with noise enough to scare a whole family. I laughed too, I couldn't help it, an' as we went downstairs arm in arm, he said:

"You shall not be abused, not if I have to do the housework an' mind the babies myself. Only, mother mine, only don't throw Eliza Jane at me."

How long ago was that do you think? Just four years an' two months to a day. The place looks better than it ever did, an' the house seems nicer every way. There's books an' papers an' flowers everywhere, an' a piano in the parlor (Adam and I bought it last Christmas) an' a stout girl in the kitchen, an' attendin' to it all is my daughter-in-law. If I say it myself, you can't find a better housekeeper nor a better woman anyway you take her. Only I hope Tom's forgotten what I vowed about machinery, for I declare there's enough of it stowed away to start a hardware store. An' the funniest thing is that I like the labor-savin' things an' take a pride in them. I like somethin' else—I like the baby to come creepin' up my gown, holdin' out its hands an' lookin' at me with its father's tender blue eyes. I'm foolish over it—very. I lecture Adam sometimes about bein' such a slave to the three-year-old Jim—a good child but homely—very. Lookin' through the window I can see them now down in the orchard. Neighbor Jones is with them an' I can just tell by the satisfied smirk on my partner's face that he has been listenin' to some such remark as: "Well, I'll be blessed if that youngster doesn't grow more the image of his grand-dad every hour in the day!"

"It's true, too, an' I often think to myself that Adam need never complain that Jim is too good lookin'—for a boy.
—Jean Blewett, in Banner of Gold.

A FRENCH perfumer has been making tests of California roses and discovered that they possessed twenty per cent. more of the volatile oil than the French roses. This means the development of a new industry for California. The French perfume factories of the town of Grasse alone give employment to five thousand persons. It is said that fifty cents per pound is paid for some flowers.

THERE is said to be a chestnut tree in Mansfield, Conn., whose circumference at the roots is fifty-four feet and the diameter of the spread of its branches in one direction is a hundred feet. Its height is about eighty feet. This is undoubtedly the largest tree of the kind in the United States.

THE LAEMMERMAN CASE.

How it Puzzled the Doctors for Six Years and How it Happily Terminated.

Who are the successful specialists?

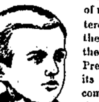

The physicians who, having first secured the best medical education and training that the colleges and great hospitals of the country afford, choose a special line of practice and devote themselves to it entirely and absolutely.

The treatment and cure of that particular disease or class of diseases becomes their life work. They gain a mastery over their specialties. If a cure is possible, a cure is effected.

Doctor Stackhouse and his associates are the successful specialists in the treatment of catarrh and all other chronic diseases.

The Laemmerman Case.

We present herewith a splendid likeness of Master George Laemmerman, whose name is quite familiar to newspaper readers by reason of the wide publication a few weeks ago of what has become generally known as the "Laemmerman Case." The case is not of merely local interest, for through the medium of the Associated Press dispatches, its fame has become almost national.

MASTER GEORGE LAEMMERMAN.

George Laemmerman is now 9 years old. Ever since his 4th year he has been peculiarly and sadly afflicted with what a half a dozen physicians had diagnosed as nasal catarrh. During all this time the boy's parents had been untiring in their efforts to find some treatment that would benefit the case. In vain they went from one physician to another. The wise men, one and all, pronounced the boy's trouble to be catarrh and treated the case as such. The rest of the story is best told by George's father. He says:

"After treating with five doctors, two at Huntington and three at Fort Wayne and finding that George's case was growing worse instead of better, I decided to take him to a specialist in the treatment of catarrhal diseases. Determined to secure the best medical service obtainable, I took him direct to the Stackhouse Medical Institute. I told the specialists that the boy had a bad case of catarrh. Before beginning treatment, however, they insisted upon a thorough examination of the case. The examining physician had not progressed far with the examination until he announced that George did not have catarrh but that there were evidences of the existence of some foreign body in his nose. Then, before any of us were fully aware of his intention, he had taken up an instrument and removed from the nostril something that very much resembled a shoe button, although it was so heavily encrusted that it was difficult to determine just what it was. I now remember that several years ago it was supposed that George had pushed a button up his nose and we had a doctor examine him. He assured us that there was nothing there. The next year appeared the symptoms of what the doctors told us was catarrh and we have ever since treated him for that malady, until the specialists of the Stackhouse Medical Institute discovered and removed the real cause of all the trouble. George is now doing very well, and is quite a different boy."

N. B.—Successful Specialists are able to distinguish the difference between a shoe button and nasal Catarrh.

Foreign Coin in France.

France wants to alter her coinage so as to avoid being inundated with foreign copper money, often inferior in value to her own. The government would like to introduce some new material for the baser coin—possibly a mixture of bronze and aluminum.

A New York Advertisement.

The personal column of a New York daily contains this golden opportunity: "A well-educated young man of good social position will marry any lady of means who will provide funds for him to procure a divorce from his present wife, whom he cannot get along with."

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Is true of old coats and mouths. When the former shows the first defect take a "stitch," and always keep the mouth right by using SOZODONT. It costs less for a new coat than a set of teeth. False teeth are not as pleasant as natural ones.

Why is it that Strictly Pure White Lead is the best paint?

Because it will outlast all other Paints, make a handsomer finish, give better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less.

If a color other than white is wanted, tint the paint with the National Lead Co.'s

Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in small cans, one pound being sufficient to tint twenty-five pounds of strictly pure White Lead to the desired shade.

Be Careful

to use only old and well-known brands of white lead. The market is flooded with adulterated and "so-called" white leads. The following brands are always strictly pure and are established by the test of years:
ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)
FAHNESTOCK (Pittsburgh)
MORLEY (Cleveland)
RED SEAL (St. Louis)
SHIPMAN (Chicago)
SOUTHERN (St. Louis and Chicago)

These brands of strictly pure White Lead and the National Lead Co.'s Tinting colors are for sale by the best dealers in paints everywhere.

If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send to us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar; it will only cost you a postal card to do so.

A Canal Reopened.

Health is largely dependent upon a regular habit of body. The bowels act as an important canal for the carrying of waste matter off the system. They, together with the kidneys and pores, are outlets for debris whose presence is fatal to the body's well being. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is no violent purgative, but a gentle laxative admirably adapted to the wants of the constipated. It never gripes and wrenches the intestines as all drastic cathartics do, but produces an action akin to that of an effort of nature. Biliousness, indigestion, with their associate manifestation, costiveness, are speedily and completely remedied by this fine corrective, which also conquers malaria, sick headache, kidney and rheumatic trouble, and checks premature decay.

Brakeman D. G. Mower, of the Wabash, was the victim of foot pads at Andrews Tuesday night. He was robbed of a watch and $11 in cash. Mower runs between Toledo and Andrews and is well known in this city.

All ticket collectors on trains of the Ohio and Mississippi were taken off on Sunday and the conductors are back in their usual element. It is intimated that the position of ticket collector on the Big Four lines will be short lived.

Brakeman Kutsch is injured more severely than was at first supposed. Yesterday he was attacked by hemorrhage of the lungs and his condition is quite serious. He is still at Nevada, under the care of an Upper Sandusky physician.

The work of placing an automatic sprinkler in the store room at the electric light works has been completed. This is one of the most recent inventions in the way of protection against fire and is said to be second to none now in use.

Supt. E. A. Gould, Master of Transportation Shaw Stevens, Roadmaster Adams and Superintendentent of Bridges and Buildings Danes are now out on their annual inspection tour of the Wabash lines, with General Manager Hays and General Superintendent Magee.

The Wabash Plaindealer says: "The new locomotives purchased by the Wabash company from the Rhode Island works are rated at thirty cars east and west, but while having larger drivers and beeing speedy, they are not 'stayers' on the hills and frequently 'hang up' with twenty-six cars on the heavy grade at Logansport."

A session of the railroad commissioners was held at New York yesterday for the purpose of hearing suggestions concerning the feasibility of automatic car couplers. It was decided by the commission to draft a bill to present to congress and mail copies of it to the railroads of the state. If found satisfactory it would be pushed at once in the house. It was the united opinion of the railway representatives before the commission that a clause limiting the time of equipment to the year 1898, with two years' extension, would be satisfactory to the roads.

The Wabash has thus far received five of the fifteen new passenger and freight engines contracted for with the Rhode Island locomotive works. Of this number all but two, 414 and 417, have been put in service on the second district of the main line, between Andrews and Tilton, the locomotives mentioned having been sent to the Eel River branch. The "creepers" which have been running on the main line pulling through freight are now to be assigned to local runs and the light engines displaced by the new and heavy Burnsides will go to the Detroit-Chicago extension.

Railway managers are becoming more sensible and more liberal in their treatment of newspaper men at times of accident. Formerly, by order from headquarters, the lips of employes were sealed when wrecks occur and reporters had to make the best stagger possible at getting a report. Now this is changed, and this order from General Manager Harahan, of the Illinois Central, indicates that it will be the policy of that company to afford press representatives every facility for obtaning actual information of trouble on its system. He says: "It will generally be found that if the company's agents and local officers will furnish the press the facts in matters in which the public has an interest, the newspapers will generally appreciate such action and will refrain from publishing extravagant or highly colored accounts of circumstances connected with the company's operations. Many newspapers make such exaggerated reports because they are unable to secure from the proper representatives of the company the actual facts, and are therefore compelled to glean their information from persons who are not always familiar with facts and who may be prejudiced against the company."

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS than copper does with gold. One trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, jr., Ph., D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER shows it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

You may bridle the appetite but you cannot bribe the liver to do its work well. You must be honest with it, help it along a little now and then with a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator. The liver becomes sluggish sometimes and needs some stimulation to keep off those attacks of Indigestion and Biliousness. A good active liver promotes digestion and prevents Malaria.

"Zeb," the new Hoosier comedy, was presented at Havlin's for the first time last night, and some of the predictions made for it were verified. It has has some rough spots, but this was to be expected. On the whole, however, it is a fair bit of comedy, and its reception was gratifying to the management. "Zeb" will hold the boards at Havlin's all the week, and next Sunday night the house closes for the season with a big variety bill.—Chicago Tribune, June 20.

Yesterday Miss Lizzie Schuckman celebrated the anniversary of her birth in an enjoyable manner. Card playing and dancing were indulged in and a sumptuous supper was served. Woehnker, Joe Aman, John Aman, George Schone, John Woehnker, Ed. Kalbacher, Clem Schuckman, D. Altar, Henry Klug, Joe Schafer, Joe Derhelmer, Ben Kramer, Frank Oston, Ed. Scheib. Upon departing for home the guests all wished the hostess many happy returns of the day.

Now comes the Grace church bazaar in the room adjoining the building of the Foster Furniture company, on Court street. The ladies have been industriously preparing for this annual event for the past several weeks and the opening last evening was a great success. Several exceedingly pretty booth have been arranged, at which domestic articles, candy, ice cream and cake, flowers, Christmas presents and, in fact, anything you want, can be had for a small sum of money. If the excellent, substantial luncheon included in the price of the ticket, is not sufficient for the hungry man, for a consideration it may be possible to secure such dainties as chicken pie, plum pudding and cake. These appetizing dinners and suppers will be served every noon and evening for a week, at least, and probably longer than that. An entertainment will be given every evening. For this evening the program is a drill by several young ladies and music by the band from the Feeble Minded Asylum. The ladies in charge are experienced in the work of fairs and they always make them a success. Their dinners are especially noted.

BEAUTY AND BLISS.

The Nathan-Straus Nuptials Celebrated Last Evening.

The Wedding One of the Most Elaborate Society Events Given in This City.

"Whose will be the next occasion,
For the flowers, the feast, the wine?"

One of the handsomest events of the social season occurred last evening at the Hebrew Temple when Miss Rose Nathan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Nathan, gave her hand and heart into the keeping of Mr. Simon Strauss, a wealthy banker of Ligonier. Both of the parties are prominent and popular members of Hebrew society and their union was an event which called together a notable gathering. The church was profusely decorated with palms, ferns and potted plants of brightest green, making a beautiful background for the white, pink and yellow chrysanthemums with which the altar fairly bloomed. In the center, and just in front of the altar was an arch draped in smilax, caught here and there with bunches of white chrysanthemums, from which was suspended a large wedding bell of white 'mums' and that delicate fern, adiatum. Mr. John Mohr, jr., played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal procession slowly filed up the centre aisle, and the scene in the sacred edifice was, indeed, a most brilliant one. The ushers, Messrs. Louis Stiefel, of Angola; Eli Strauss, of Chicago; Ike Strauss, of Ligonier; Al. Friend, Ed. Fisher, Joseph Freiberger and Charles Nathan, of this city, led the bridal party. Mrs. J. Strauss, of Chicago, mother of the groom, was escorted by the groom, Mr. Simon J. Strauss, of Ligonier. Mrs. J. Nathan mother of the bride, walked with Mr. J. Strauss, father of the groom. The bride, Miss Rose Nathan, the centre of attraction, entered leaning upon the arm of her father, Mr. J. Nathan, and was followed by two little pages, Masters Ralph Keller, of Chicago, and Chester Nathan, of this city. As the bridal party neared the altar, the bride and groom stepped beneath the wedding bell and the ushers and relatives were gracefully grouped on both sides. Rabbi Hirshberg spoke the impressive words which united the happy pair. At the close of the service, as the organ sent forth the melodious strains of Mendelshon's wedding march, the bridal party was led down the aisle by Mr. S. J. Strauss and his beautiful bride. The bride's costume was an exquisite one of cream crystal bengaline, made with high neck and long court train. The sleeves were draped in two large puffs, crught with bands of pearls. The bodice was trimmed with a girdle of pearl passementrie and bertha of rare old point lace. A flounce of the same lace finished the bottom of the skirt. The veil of tulle was fastened with pearl pins and fell to the tip of the long train, and only partially concealed the lovely face of the bride. A large bouquet of rare orchids was carried. Mrs. Julius Nathan was handsomely gowned in silver gray bengaline trimmed with real duchess lace and cut steel and diamond ornaments. Mrs. J. Strauss was costumed in black Lyons velvet trimmed with point lace and diamond ornaments. After the ceremony the brilliant company were conveyed in carriages to the Standard club rooms where a reception and banquet was given. The hall was wreathed in dainty vines intertwined with chrysanthemums, and the bank of palms and ferns concealed Rieneke's orchestra. The duties of receiving were performed by the newly-wedded couple, and many were the congratulations showered upon them. The banquet hall was a bower of beauty, and the five tables their pyramids of fruit and towers of bon bons were temptingly arranged. The procession to the dining hall was led by the bride and groom. An elaborate menu of several courses was served by Caterer Siedel, assisted by the corps of waiters from the Wayne and from the New Aveline. Telegrams from friends not able to be present were received and read during the banquet and Radbi Hirsch responded to the toast of the evening and was most enthusiastically applauded. Not until 12 o'clock did the banquet come to an end and the dancing begin. It was early this morning when the festivities were brought to a close. The occasion was as brilliant as it was pleasurable, and the rememberance of it will be carried away to many a distant place. Among the many beautiful costumes the following were noticeable:

Mrs. Ollie Hyman, of Wabash, black India broche, trimmed with lavender crepe and jet.
